Residents oppose neighborhood development

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Ecorse subdivision residents know what they want.

A small army of individuals from this close knit neighborhood attended the Romulus City Council meeting Monday night and they came prepared to defend their homes.

Residents of this small neighborhood sandwiched between Metro Airport on the south, Smith Road on the north, Middlebelt Road on the east and high rise hotels and parking lots encroaching from the west have long claimed they are living in limbo.

Several years ago the neighborhood was rezoned from residential to business transitional. And now a local developer and businessman would like the neighborhood rezoned again, this time to regional center.

The man at the center of the controversy is Wendall Flynn, owner of Airlines Parking whose business is immediately west of their neighborhood. Last year, the city of Romulus issued 13 tickets for various violations to Flynn, including not obtaining the proper permits. Four of these charges are criminal, city officials confirmed.

Mayor Beverly McAnally said Flynn would be in court at 9:30 a.m. Feb. 1 on these violations.

Residents claim and city officials substantiate that Flynn has demolished several homes in the area without following proper procedures.

"That man has made this place a dump," said former resident Gloria Branham.

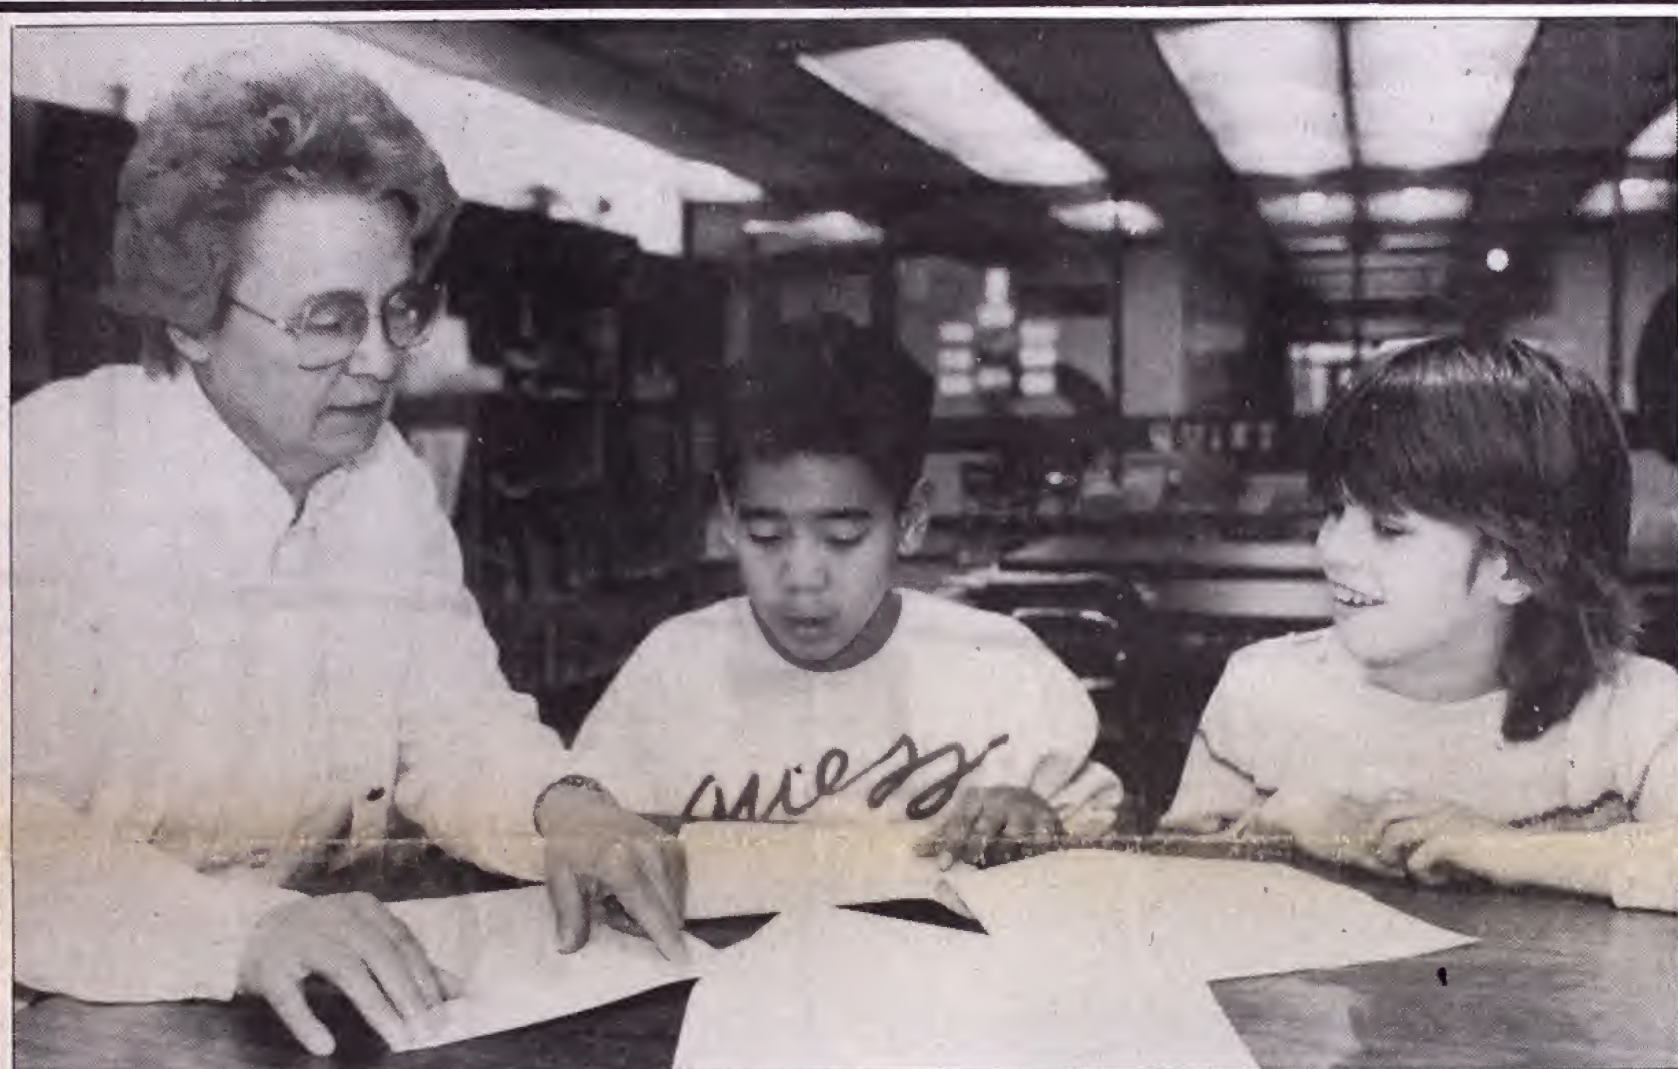

Residents claim a recent rezoning request for Hudson Street by Flynn was pushed through city council and approved at two council meetings on Nov. 23 and Dec. 21. They claim the rezoning was not publicly announced and the few residents in attendance were not recognized.

Mayor Pro Tem Mary Ann Banks explained council members followed the rules of order and the city charter. She added that everyone is offered the opportunity to speak when they also follow the proper procedure.

Councilman Jimmie Raspberry defended Banks and his fellow councilmen. "Ms. Banks has chaired these meetings for longer than anyone. She is the

Help on the way Drug Task force to implement program

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus business and city officials are taking no prisoners in their war against drugs.

During a special luncheon hosted by the Romulus Chamber of Commerce at the Romulus Hilton Inn last Tuesday, representatives from local government, business and industry turned out in force.

The topic of discussion, Human Problems in the Workplace, or more specifically substance abuse in the workplace. The program was initiated by the Mayor's Drug Task Force.

"We have already had a number of successful projects since the task force began a year and a half ago," said Mayor Beverly McAnally.

The task force was established to help fight against drug and alcohol abuse in the community. Highlights include different activities conducted for youth through the Recreation Department during the summer. A drug hot line for individuals with problems or those who know of drug offenders was also implemented. They developed and distributed a teen help card. The mayor and task force members also promoted dialogue with local youth.

Two local businesses shared their experience with Employee Assistance Programs in their companies. Business representatives agree that such programs are designed to foster positive management and labor relationships, promote problem resolution, maintain the employee's dignity and confidentiality and provide a return on investment.

"It is better to try to keep a highly trained and productive employee then to go out and hire and retrain a new one," said one Chamber of Commerce member.

Bill Nash, United Auto Worker representative for Chevrolet-Pontiac-Canada, formerly Diesel Allison on Ecorse Road in Romulus said, "The program covers people problems."

As a member of the Mayor's Task Force for the past year, Nash highlighted a number of successful community programs such as Say No to Drugs Basketball conducted during the summer for local youths.

"We want to help businesses in Romulus deal with the drug problem. And it is a serious problem. National statistics report that 10 percent of the general population are alcoholics. Another seven percent are drug abusers. Drug activity is being pushed out from the city into the suburbs. The drug problem is steadily increasing," he said.

"This project is a challenge to the community," said Alton Shelly, director of the Romulus Help Center. The Help Center on Goddard Road provides individual, group and family counseling for people with a variety of problems.

"More employers are taking steps to address abuse problems in the workplace. They are taking positive steps in the early stages of the problem," he said.

Community support for the program prompted such notables as Mayor Cameron Priebe of Taylor to be in attendance.

Officials scratch surface of lice problem

Despite the dozen children sent home this year from Romulus schools because of head lice, officials stress that there is no epidemic of the parasite in the schools.

Romulus school nurse Ruth Fairchild and Wayne County Health Director Dr. Donald Lawrenchuk agree there is no epidemic in Romulus or anywhere in the country at this time.

One local mother may want to disagree, as her child was one of the 12 sent home this school year for contracting the "nuisance disease."

School officials agree, even the cleanest and best educated of people can contract the parasites in hair, clothing, home or at a school.

Valerie Flournoy's first grade son has had head lice three times since last fall.

Last October, her son was sent home after his teacher found lice on his head.

"I said fine. We've had a bout with head lice. But before Christmas, the nurse found them again. So I got rid of them again. Now this is getting silly. And when they found him with head lice after Christmas, I said, this is stupid," said Flournoy whose son has now come down with the chicken pox.

Flournoy's complaint isn't uncommon. It's a fact, according to Fairchild and Lawrenchuk, headlice are not easy to eliminate.

Fairchild said she has sent home less than 12 children she has found with head lice among the 6,000 students in Romulus schools.

"That's not bad. There were two kids from Cory, a couple from Wick and one from Hayti. The first days back from any vacation are the busiest," she said.

Several procedures are standard in the school district when head lice is found. First, parents are notified and the child

Fine feathered friends Injured peahen recovers in new home

By BOB DENYS

Polly has a new home.

While that may not be a startling bit of news to some, a number of area residents were concerned enough about Polly to phone Associated Newspapers last week to offer to take her in out of the cold.

Polly is the injured peacock found by a Romulus man and his son two weeks ago with her wing frozen in the ice.

Ken Clelland of Romulus and his son Chris, 11, were hunting near Belleville and found Polly. They rescued the bird, nursed it back to health and wanted to find it a good home. Clelland, according to his son, dubbed the peahen Polly for reasons which remain unknown.

Following a story regarding Polly and her plight in the Romulus Roman last week, more than a dozen calls were received at the newspaper office offering to adopt Polly.

But after weighing all the potential applicants, Diane and Roger Ferguson of Sumpter Township were awarded the adoption honors by Clelland and are now the proud "parents" of the peahen.

"She's a big bird," said Ferguson who already raises a brood of five peafowl. It's her husband's hobby, she said.

"She looks like she's been fed and well kept. The female is very drab in color compared with the male bird. Peafowl are more touchy to raise than chickens. They like real fresh water and a clean coop. And they don't eat much. We'd like her to mate with our male," Ferguson said.

Kathy Van Asche of Romulus called because she and other family members wanted another pet. They annually participate in the Wayne County Fair and often return with the coveted first place ribbon for their prize pigs.

Grassroots Landscaping Company on Sibley Road in Huron Township wanted the animal for a mascot. Gary Bates explained their business already displays a variety of small unusual breeds of sheep and chicken. "It's a good way to entertain young people," he said.

Alan Weikum, 11, of New Boston has been raising peafowl for a year now. "I've got three, one peacock and two peahens. I love 'em. I like their color especially when they spread their tails. Other than that, there's not much to it. I just water 'em, feed 'em, clean the coop and watch 'em," he said.

Another nearby resident, Mary Putelak of Huron Township, whose small farm boasts many, many farm animals including rabbits, chickens, guinea hens, goats, geese, offered the injured bird a home.

Grandson of 'Sewer' is born

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

A downsized version of the "super sewer" was unveiled last week by Wayne County officials who have been touring local municipalities and townships to explain the need for the pipeline. Legally labeled the North Huron Valley/Rouge Valley project, the pipeline is designed to take sewage from each of the participating local sewage systems and eventually transfer it to a plant located in Detroit.

Most local communities including Westland, Wayne, Inkster, Romulus and the Van Buren Township are involved in the proposed system. Canton, Plymouth and Northville, originally involved in the "super sewer" project pulled in 1986 out after a legal battle with the county and state Department of Natural Resources to tie in with the Ypsilanti system.

Originally proposed in the mid 1960s at a cost of $103 million, the ambitious project was shelved when local legal challenges and deadlines for federal grant monies were not met.

The North Huron-Rouge Valley project is a spinoff of the larger sewer plan. However, instead of the federal government offering to pay 75 percent of the construction costs, it will only pick up 55 percent.

James E. Murray, Wayne County Division of Public Works, has spent the last two weeks meeting with local officials to explain the new project.

The pipeline service area will include Romulus, Van Buren, Wayne, Westland, Inkster, Novi, Redford Township, Garden City, Dearborn Heights, and Livonia.

"If this project fails again," Murray warned, "it is going to take more than a jump start to get it started again."

"The program was interesting and well received," McAnally said.

The message, Shelly emphasized, was clear. "Alcohol and drug abuse are serious problems. And there are definite steps an employer can take to reduce absenteeism, safety problems and increase productivity," he said.

Businesses of all sizes are encouraged to participate in the program designed not just for large corporate companies.

"There are steps any sized business can take. We are in the preliminary process of planning a workshop for later this spring. At that time, we'll conduct a brainstorming session with local business representatives about how to establish an employee assistance program in their workplace," Shelly added.

"This is our way of helping the community," said Don Harding, also a UAW representative with the CPC employee assistance program.

fairest person to sit in that position. We must follow the law," he said.

Lora Branham, lifetime resident of the neighborhood, presented council members with petitions containing nearly 1,000 signatures.

"I am not the official spokesperson. I came here to do my best and represent the best interests of people in my subdivision," she said.

"I don't feel we have had the support of city council up until now. Why has our city council allowed this to happen?" she asked.

She explained that rezoning failed before city council on Dec. 7 because, "we were strong in number at the council meeting" but was approved on Dec. 21.

"Wendall Flynn intends to continue to develop through our subdivision all the way from Merriman to Middlebelt Road. He, and possibly other realtors working for him, are continuing to buy up property from the residents of our subdivision one piece at a time. These residents are not even being offered the full residential market value for their property," Branham said.

We fully surmise that Mr. Flynn may continue to acquire additional pieces of property from residents in our neighborhood, and he will continue to request and apparently further receive rezoning this property.

She suggested that subdivision property, since it is zoned for business and is being used for business investment, that it be sold at the business market value.

"That's approximately $10 a square foot. We should have the right and opportunity to unite legally and represent our own property. We must insure the protection of our residential homes as long as we still exist," she stated.

She added that the majority of residents do not want to move. "It is not for our convenience that the master plans of the city want our neighborhood for business use. We fully surmise that Mr. Flynn may continue to acquire additional pieces of property from residents in our neighborhood, and he will continue to request and apparently further receive rezoning this property.

"Residents are not specifically included and intended to exist in Regional Center zoning. However, they are protected within residential uses of the Business Transitional zoning. This is a serious threat upon our neighborhood," she said.

Branham further explained in a letter to council that, "Romulus City Council and the city planning commission in accordance with Master Plans for the city and by working with developers such as Wendall Flynn encourage development in our neighborhood. The city does not plan for our residential neighborhood to be here."

One outspoken resident in her seventies who built a home with her husband in 1943, said, "I love this place. I don't want to have to move."

McAnally assured that she was and other residents were not being forced out of their homes. "You don't have to sell your property. And you're not being forced out by anybody," she said.

Raspberry added that residents are protected by the law of eminent domain which protects resident from unlawful seizure of their property.

One resident explained, "I want to see this community grow and blossom. We have to stick together. We don't want to this community mowed over."

Dennis Oakes, Economic Development director told residents about a Home Equity Program and incentive package being developed by the mayor.

"We don't want to lose you as residents. An experienced homeowner is a valuable asset to the community," McAnally stressed.

Councilman Randy Gear assured residents, "You are very much a part of this community. We are behind you 100 percent. We ask that you work with us."

"Why does the city of Romulus encourage developers like Flynn who constantly break the law?" asked Branham.

"I've been here so many years, it's home," concluded one resident.

Polly

"People constantly abandon animals near out house. We give them a home. We love animals," she said.

Bob Youtsey of New Boston owns four peafowl. He has for five years. "I raise them because they look so pretty in the summer. The tail of a male can spread six to seven feet. They're a hardy bird," he added.

Many people called concerned about finding the owner. Dave Garlick of Sumpter Road in Belleville raises deer. "I'd be glad to help anybody with their crazy critters running around," he said.

Kathy Bridges of Albion and a 1972 graduate of Romulus High School said she and her family live on a small farm. "We love birds. Peacocks are so beautiful, even though they make a lot of noise," she said. Ferguson was the first caller to offer a home for the bird, and staff members at Associated Newspapers admit some prejudice in the matter. Ferguson is the office manager at the Belleville office of the newspaper and admittedly, several staff members sought to keep Polly in the family.

sent home. Parents are encouraged to check other family members on a biweekly basis and notify parents of the child's playmates. Teachers then check all students in the class as well as the classmates of the infected student's siblings.

"This is particularly important if the children have participated in activities involving frequent body contact. The child is not allowed to return to school until the child has been treated with a head louse shampoo and all nits have been removed completely from the hair," she said.

Lawrenchuk said that 160 children in the 43 communities of Wayne County excluding Detroit are known to have had headlice so far this year. September was the peak month with 566 cases reported. During 1987, 2,755 total cases were reported from county schools.

"The trend tends to be on the down side. Head lice are a nuisance disease. Schools are not required to report these incidents. We estimate at least 10 times as many cases go unreported," Lawrenchuk said.

He added, "There are certainly a lot of myths about head lice. The treatment is simple as long as you follow directions."

Many people tend to over treat, Lawrenchuk said. When the directions say to rinse in 10 minutes, that's what people should do. Many head lice shampoos contain dangerous compounds that may lead to other problems.

"There is no headlice epidemic," affirmed Nick Totus, principal of Wick School, largest elementary school in the district.

"Now in September of 1985, we had a problem with head lice. We find the greatest number of students with headlice in September. It's always after vacation and it's often in the same family. Right now, it's no big problem," Totus said.

The problem, Fairchild said, nurses in the downriver area concluded, is chicken pox. "Chicken pox is beginning to appear. Nurses in Wyandotte said they're really rampant and headed this way," she said.

No one has to tell Flournoy. She was the first to know.

Romulus resident opens downtown law office

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

The newest business face in town is a familiar one. Attorney Brian Oakley, 26, a fifth generation Romulus resident just opened a law office on Goddard Road near Five Points in downtown Romulus.

Oakley looked at offers from other law firms but decided to stay in his hometown, Romulus. Family and friends are important, he said.

The large blue silo on Goddard east of Wayne Road is all that remains of his grandfather's farm. Oakley is single and the youngest of four children. He presently lives with his parents on Tobine Road, sometimes called "Oakley Acres." If the name sounds somewhat familiar, it's probably because his father, Bill, is a former mayor of the city.

"I felt there was a need for another lawyer in Romulus," he said. Currently, only three other attorneys have offices in the city.

"I think Romulus will be a good place to work. People I've talked with agree. There are a lot of small businesses in the city. With my office downtown, I expect people to come in and talk," he said.

He noted that unfortunately our society has become "too litigious."

"Everybody wants to sue their neighbor. But you can't really survive without the advice of a good lawyer. Any major step a person takes in their life requires paperwork. When it involves any type of contract or an interpretation of the law, attorneys can assist clients through this process. You can't expect a bank, mortgage company or anyone else to look out for your best interests. And if a situation is serious enough to go to court in the first place, it's serious enough to talk with an attorney. For a business person, it's a necessity," he said.

As court case loads grow, more and more attention is drawn to the legal profession. Television proliferates the image of the fast talking lawyer. Oakley doesn't characterize himself that way.

"I'd like to say my style will be prepared and casual. Being prepared is the key to being a good lawyer," he said.

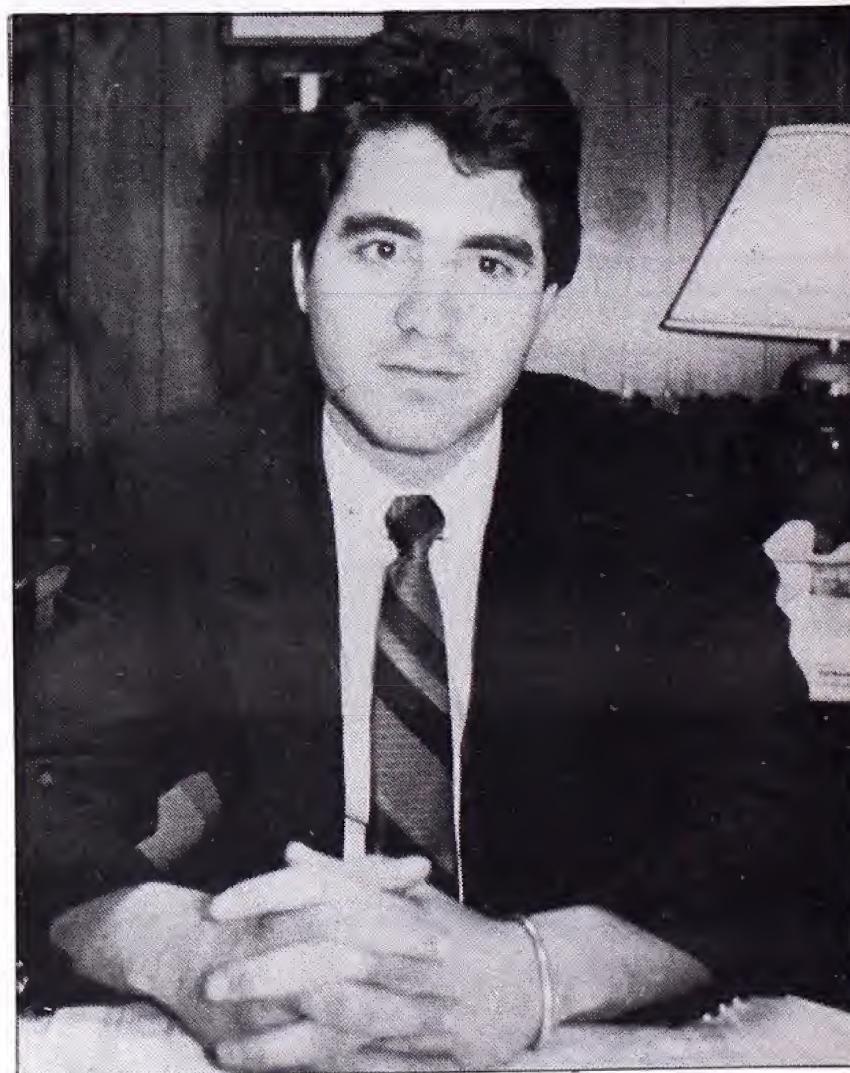

Oakley graduated from Romulus High School in 1979 and after several years of study and hard work, from Wayne State University Law School. He passed the Michigan Bar exam last November.

"I went into law probably because of my basic argumentative nature," he said.

The focus of his practice at this time includes real estate and general litigation. He doesn't anticipate any sensational murder trials in the near future.

"But I want to put a lot of cases behind me before I specialize. I've talked with lots of people about many interesting things. Some are off the wall, others are very serious. I want to be fair with people about whether or not I could accept their case if they have one.

"I stayed in Romulus because it's nice to work with people when you know their family and they know yours. That means a lot to me. When I can deal with people I grew up with, it makes my job more enjoyable," Oakley concluded.

New state law is policy in schools

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

School superintendents in western Wayne County agree that a new state law regarding weapons in schools has been standard policy for years.

In January, Gov. James Blanchard signed House Bill 4428 requiring local school superintendents to immediately notify a student's parents or guardian and local police when dangerous weapons are found in a student's possession.

"We've been doing that for 30 years," said Dennis O'Neill, superintendent of the Wayne-Westland School district.

All other area superintendents agree with O'Neill. O'Neill noted that in the Wayne-Westland district of 17,157 students, weapons are not a problem.

"This district is very fortunate. We can't put our heads in the sand and say these things don't happen, but our experience with weapons in schools is minimal. Over the years, we have had our share of incidents," O'Neill stated.

Problems have occurred regarding the exact definition of weapon, according to William Bedell, superintendent of the Romulus Schools where more than 6,000 students are educated.

"Can a pocket knife be considered a weapon?" Bedell asked.

"A couple years ago, we found a hunting knife in the glove compartment of student's car. This was an unusual and innocent situation. But this could be considered a weapon, and the incident had to be addressed," said Bedell.

Parents are automatically notified when their children are found with weapons, he added.

"Even a shop project or some tools can be interpreted as weapons," said Romulus officials attribute the reduction of incidents involving weapons in their schools to parents, teachers and students "who are very much aware of the consequences of having weapons in schools."

There's just no reason for kids to bring weapons into school.

— Dr. Wm. Bedell
Romulus School Superintendent

Three years ago, a youth from the surrounding community fatally stabbed a Romulus student in the school hallway.

"For the next month, we had a spate of incidents involving several students who carried weapons into school. They said they were scared and didn't feel safe. Our position has always been that if a kid brings a weapon into school, they're gone," said Bedell.

"I haven't had a single weapons problem come to my attention in the past 11 or 12 months," he added.

Alvin Peets, superintendent of Van Buren Schools, agreed that the recent state ruling on weapons in schools has been "standard operating procedure in our schools for a long time."

"I was just turning the page in the code of student conduct adopted by the members of the school board. First the weapon is confiscated. Parents are consulted next, and the local authorities notified. Students are automatically suspended for up to 10 days," he explained.

Van Buren school officials have not encountered weapons in students' possession for at least three or four years.

Again, the definition of weapon is a problem, Peets stressed.

"We tend to be rather broad in our definition. A starter pistol was never considered a weapon. Earlier this year, a kid in the middle school was found with a look-alike toy gun. Students became excited and the teacher concerned. We're taking a hard nosed stand on even the most minor of incident involving even look-alike weapons," said Peets.

Weapons are not permitted in the Plymouth-Canton school district, officials noted. And they have never encountered an serious incident where weapons were involved.

"A kid brought an unloaded gun to school two years ago. This was a very unusual incident and handled quite differently. However, he was not able to graduate with his class," said Dick Egli, district spokesperson.

Again parents are called immediately, stressed Tim Ford, school district security chief.

"Much of how we handle the situation depends on the intent of the student for having a weapon in their possession at school," added Egli.

"There's just no reason for kids to bring weapons into school. As far as this latest ruling regarding what to do with students who have weapons, we've been doing this for years," said Bedell.

Columnist will provide legal advice

By RAY DAY
ANP Managing Editor

For those planning to take the advice of nationally syndicated television program The People's Court by "taking the law into your own hands," local attorney Michael Wampler is willing to provide some expert assistance.

Wampler has joined the staff of columnists at the Associated Newspapers and will be providing readers with legal advice. His column, "On the Law," will appear regularly in the six Associated papers.

A Westland resident, Wampler, 29, is married and has been practicing law for almost five years. He currently owns his own firm in Plymouth and was previously employed by Dickinson, Wright, Moon, Van Dusen and Freeman, in Lansing, one of the largest law firms in the state.

He holds a law degree from the University of Michigan and a bachelor's degree in science from Wayne State University.

His area of specialty is corporate and taxation law, two topics he will try to "de-legalize" for readers to make the law more understandable and approachable, he said.

"It is important for consumers to know something about the law. It can bring peace of mind," Wampler said. "You need to have someone you can rely on (legally). When a major crisis arises, that's probably the worst time to go out and find someone you can trust."

In his column, Wampler will discuss wills, the probate court, real estate and tax law. His advice will be quite a bargain, he said, considering his hourly fee is usually $80 per hour.

A native of Detroit, Wampler became interested in the legal system at an early age. Having 11 brothers and sisters may have provided the groundwork for his attorney arguing skills, but it was a solid educational background, he said, that honed those skills.

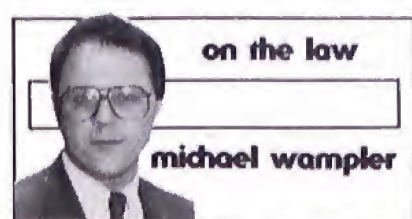

"I wanted to be in a service profession more than in the applied trades. I found that I had did best in the professions that require you to speak well and write well," Wampler said. "I also have a strong interest in politics by being in the area of helping people."

Should surrogate contracts be allowed?

Currently, Michigan has no state laws regulating surrogate parent contracts. By failing to act, the Legislature has left it to the Michigan courts to decide whether surrogacy contracts are enforceable.

Last Thursday, Gratiot County Circuit Court Judge Timothy Green ruled that Laurie Yates' written agreement to bear the child of Barry and Glinda Huber was not enforceable — the contract was invalid because it violated Michigan unstated "public policy."

In Yates v. Huber, Laurie Yates (age 24) successfully sought to have declared void the contract under which she bore twins fathered by Barry Huber, of Jonesboro, Ark., through artificial insemination. Yates on the law

said she and her husband challenged their mind about giving up the twin boy and girl — now 4½ months old — and wanted to keep them.

What do you think? Should an infertile couple be allowed to experience the joy and love of parenting their own child through surrogacy? Or does surrogacy "denigrate human dignity" as Judge Green reasoned? Would it still deni-grate dignity if Mrs. Yates freely offered her services to a friend? Is adoption or foster care a satisfactory alternative for these unfortunate couples?

If the surrogacy contract can be pushed aside by the surrogate mother, can it also be ignored by the natural father, who may decide after conception he no longer wants the child and refused to pay the surrogacy fee or child support? Who's responsible for (or is entitled to) custody and child support under both situations?

Obviously, these questions will not be resolved by the courts on a case-by-case basis, and are better addressed by the Michigan Legislature. State Sen. Connie Binsfield (R-Maple City) has introduced legislation that would ban surrogate contracts for pay.

Write Senator Binsfield today with your support or opposition at the Michigan State Senate, Box 30036, Lansing, Mich. 48909-7536. Send copies of your letter to Sen. Robert Geake, George Hart and William Faust at the same address as well.

Please be sure to send me a copy, too. Your opinions and questions are certainly welcome on all subjects.

Please send your letters to the editor in care of this column.

Charley's is tops for food, service, atmosphere

By RAY DAY
ANP Managing Editor

It really isn't a big secret. I knew that the very minute I stepped foot in the restaurant lobby and rubbed elbows with the dozens of other people who had discovered this heaven-like cuisine.

But secret or no secret, the food and the service and the drinks and the desserts and the atmosphere . . . at the Charley's restaurant, on Michigan Avenue, Wayne, are all superb, to say the least. When I was given the task of writing a restaurant review for the local eatery (yes, I do keep all of the good assignments for myself), I could only count the days until I would again be able to sample the fine food and drink Charley's has taught me to love.

I must be honest. This restaurant review wasn't the first time I set foot in Charley's. It was probably the 260th time. The food is that good.

Nevertheless, with all of my values of objectivity and journalistic integrity in hand, I — along with my fiancée, Debbie, my personal restaurant expert and master of fine food — entered Charley's on a Friday night. I was set to put the staff to the test this night, placing aside all other fond impressions I had of the establishment.

Needless to say, the staff passed the test with flying colors. Again.

Debbie and I were greeted promptly in the restaurant lobby by Charley's General Manager Tom Tschirhart. The manager for 18 months, Tschirhart informed us that we would have to wait briefly along with all of the other hungry-looking people in the lobby. But that was no problem.

While in the lobby, I consumed more than my fair share of hot apple cider — offered free for the taking. I also watched a Charley's employee make the dough for what I consider to be Charley's award-winning rolls. And I peered aimlessly into the dessert case, looking at large-chunk chocolate chip cookies and other treats — until Debbie grabbed me and said it was our turn to sit down. She never has been big on me drooling over restaurant desserts. Sometime about a diet. Anyway . . .

Once we were seated, Debbie and I were greeted by our bubbling and always-smiling waiter, Dave. He offered us drinks from the bar. We quickly consented, with me ordering a strawberry daiquiri and Debbie opting for a pina coloda.

Then came time to order. A veteran guest at Charley's and connoisseur of chicken dishes, Debbie ordered the teriyaki breast of chicken, along with a tossed salad. Wanting to try something new, I requested the tortellini and the cole slaw — a treat all on its own.

First-time Charley's goers. I am told, are pleasantly surprised by the cole slaw. Gone are the mayonnaise and traditional look of the dish, and in comes a sweet vinegar-like oil that makes this cole slaw among the very best I have tasted.

And then there are Charley's rolls. I could make them my entire dinner. Steaming-hot, lightly salted, with real butter. I had one, and Debbie had one. Then we both had another. And, after dinner, I had another and had hoped to have one more — until Debbie caught me. Diet again.

After the rolls incident — and when Debbie had recuperated from the embarrassment I was causing her by eating far too many rolls — our dinners had arrived.

Debbie's teriyaki chicken — marinated and charbroiled — was complemented with rice pilaf and sauteed fresh vegetables. My tortellini — half moons of pasta, stuffed with meat and tossed with fresh chicken and prosciutto ham — was mixed with just the perfect amount of a light cream sauce. Both dishes were out of this world. But what did you expect? This is Charley's.

Dave, our waiter, tempted us with a silver platter of desserts. It's no wonder they put these on a silver platter — they look fit for a king. However, we both declined any dessert since we both had overindulged on the dinner rolls.

The prices at Charley's are very reasonable. Debbie's teriyaki chicken was $7.75, and my tortellini was $8.95. Combined with excellent service, a fine, yet casual, atmosphere and the rolls, the Charley's dinner is a very good deal.

Charley's of Wayne opened in 1984, Tschirhart said, as Mama's and Pasta's. Later, the name was changed to Charley's — namesake of owner Chuck Muer — to reflect the seafood specialties of the restaurant, while keeping some pasta favorites from the Mama's and Pasta's era on the menu.

Several Charley's restaurants exist in the area, Tschirhart explained, but only four remain Chuck Muer-owned. (Charley's in Wayne is one of the four.)

The other restaurants were sold by Muer, and all are in competition with each other, according to Tschirhart. Which brings to mind a few words of wisdom.

If this is a competition among the restaurants, all others should beware. The staff at the Charley's in Wayne — under the direction of chef Jon Bodin III — has mastered the art of serving fine food in a courteous and pleasing fashion. The excellence of Charley's makes many other restaurants look pale in comparison.

Charley's is located at 35111 Michigan Ave., at Wayne Road, Wayne. Hours are 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 3 to 9 p.m. Sunday.

Sewer system must be taken seriously

They are dubbing it the "Grandson of Super Sewer" — the son of the son of the grand $100 million, multi-community sewer project proposed in the mid-1960s to eliminate the sewer woes of the area for decades. Indeed, the name of this newest sewer project is humorous in form. But behind the name lies a very serious issue which must be acted upon — and soon.

The notion that the Wayne County area would run out of existing sewer capacity due to increasing commercial and residential development was not a profound one. Surely, officials in the Wayne County in the mid-1960s were well aware that the barren, wooded lands they admired would someday be replaced. Replaced by a city of Westland, Canton Township and the droves of inner-city citizens flocking to new residential havens. Thus, those officials started the Super Sewer plan, a project which included construction and restructuring of the sewage trunklines from the suburbs to the city of Detroit (where the sewage is treated). The plan was to be financed by the dozens of communities expressing an interest in the concept. And it would have remedied an over-capacity sewer situation before the economic boom of the 1980s was in full swing.

Still, there has been no action.

Next came the "Son of Super Sewer," a dramatically scaled-down version of the 1960s plan. This project was to include 16 communities and primarily serve western and northern Wayne County. The federal government even offered to help in the plan, offering 75-percent — then reduced to 55 percent — funding of the total project cost. The debates waged, the cost analysis was completed, and the project died in 1986, after three communities backed out of the plan and decided to join another project in Washtenaw County.

And still, there has been no action.

Now comes the "Grandson of Super Sewer," a $60 million project for the remaining 13 communities. The state Department of Natural Resources and federal Environmental Protection Agency have urged the member communities to participate in the plan and prove their participation in the form of a council resolution before Feb. 1. If the communities do not act, state DNR officials have threatened to impose a ban on all new building and development in the communities to prevent the over-capacity problem from becoming worse. Such a ban would be devastating to the economically fertile communities in which we now live.

Today, there must be action.

While all local lawmakers have expressed their interest in the "Grandson" project and indicated plans to participate, we urge members of the remaining communities to hold fast to this agreement and see this project completed to the end. The alternatives for our local communities are minimal — a ban on construction and further pollution problems caused by overfilled sewer lines — and the benefits of a worry-free sewer system which allows for future growth and a cleaner environment are endless.

"Grandson of Super Sewer." The name is humorous. But the issue is far too serious to be taken lightly.

School reform to be 1st analyzed carefully

"A blueprint for failure" is the way local school officials are describing Gov. Blanchard's plan for changes in the state education system this week.

School superintendents and educators questioned the value of several proposals addressed recently by the governor and state lawmakers — such as a second count day in May, a longer school year, accreditation and accountability, core curriculum, student and teacher competency testing and added monies from the state to promote programs for preschoolers in our districts.

Local educators predict a decline in state funding if the current proposals were implemented and an even more complex bureaucracy at the state level. We believe their concerns are legitimate.

While we laud state lawmakers' efforts to put the word "quality" in education, we also question whether they are considering across-the-board boosts to the system. A state aid program for preschoolers would be fine, but what about grades K-12 and higher education? A longer school year might be beneficial — but 10 or 20 days? These issues must be fully addressed and considered.

Before any new educational package can be put in place, the ramifications for every angle must be considered. With proper, quality changes in the structure of the system, this "blueprint for failure" can be the "blueprint for the future" of our nation.

"HOLD IT! LET'S SEE IF THIS WORKS!"

Calendar mailing was huge success

To The Editor:

The Canton Historical Society recently organized a very successful project for the residents of the township. The 1988 calendars were mailed to almost all residents. The response has been great.

We want to thank all of the businesses that helped make the calendars a success. And, we hope that more will be able to support this project again next year.

If anyone is interested in obtaining another copy, then please contact the Museum, Canton Chamber of Commerce or Tillie Schultz. The cost is a reasonable $2.50 each.

And a special thanks to those fine folks at the township hall who helped with the mailing.

merce and Goodfellows.

As the coordinator for these programs, all of you give me the privilege of seeing happy children and truly grateful parents. So much of the time credit for these programs is lauded on a single person, such as myself.

I want to thank you for allowing me to serve you in this capacity and to share with you the warmest of best wishes that I receive from so many that you have helped through rough times.

Library organizers hope to try again

To The Editor:

This letter is written in recognition of and appreciation for your participation in the 1987 public library campaign. Individual efforts were great and small, many and few — all important. The list of contributions to the campaign is impressive: making financial gifts, allowing name endorsements, writing newspaper articles, stuffing envelopes, securing signatures, speaking to groups, telephoning friends, etc. Yet, we did not receive enough votes in favor of a millage to support a Westland Public Library.

We shall again make the question of a library in Westland a public issue. The need for library services remains in this city of 84,000 residents. The Westland Library Board will be reviewing the campaign and election results to organize for the future.

We shall again make the question of a library in Westland a public issue. The need for library services remain in this city of 84,000 residents. The Westland Library Board will be reviewing the campaign and election results to organize for the future.

We feel that there must be ways to inform and motivate citizens about the need for a library in our city. We welcome your ideas and will carefully review all suggestions from you. Happy New Year!

School officials offer 'thanks'

To The Editor:

To each citizen who took the time to vote in the Wayne-Westland bond election, I extend sincere appreciation. With the passage of this issue, we can address the critical building needs of the district and replace some classroom furniture and equipment that are now beyond repair.

The campaign was based on a

"Promises Made, Promises Kept" theme, which will now be implemented. Each school has a list of the bond issue items which that respective building will receive, as well as the total dollars allocated for that building. As projects are completed and dollars spent, it will be so indicated on the poster at the school so that all of us can be continuously updated. Please review the status of the bond issue when you visit your school.

The success of the election campaign was the result of the efforts of a number of people to whom we are grateful. The "Building Bonds for Now and the Future Committee," Co-Chairpersons Mary Chames and Dick Honaker, along with honorary Co-Chairpersons Westland Mayor Charles "Trav" Griffin and Wayne Mayor Patrick Norton have invaluable support to addressing the problems.

The 150 citizens who served on the committee successfully accomplished their goal. Many different factors contributed to the victory. Certainly, the news coverage and editorial of the Associated Newspapers explained the issues and the critical needs which helped voters make a decision. (The cartoon once again demonstrated that a picture is worth 1,000 words!)

They're second best

Romulus stands tall at Ohio wrestling invitational

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus wrestlers ventured across the state border into Toledo over the weekend for their first look at their counterparts in Ohio.

And Ohio was "very much impressed" at the local team which finished second in a field of 20 high school squads representing the best in the state.

"It was a good experience for our wrestlers," said Romulus Coach Wayne Schimming. "We knew they (Ohio) would be tough and, after we didn't fare well at the seeding meetings, I didn't think we would do well generally."

However, Schimming's Eagles didn't disappoint him or Romulus. They garnered seven medals, including two golds. The Eagles finished second only to Bedford Temperance, the defending Class A Michigan state champ.

"We finished ahead of all of the Ohio schools, including the host, Toledo Waite," Schimming noted. "This is a unique accomplishment and evidence of how far our program has matured over the years."

Bedford amassed 186.5 points for the championship trophy, while Romulus was second with 158.5. Lakewood St. Edwards of Ohio (147), Delta, and Archbald (123) rounded out the top five places.

In heavyweight Paul Nowicki, Romulus not only had the best in the class but the 16-year-old junior also earned the "Hustler Award".

Joining Nowicki in the winner's circle was Romulus's 119-pounder Tim Kosikowski.

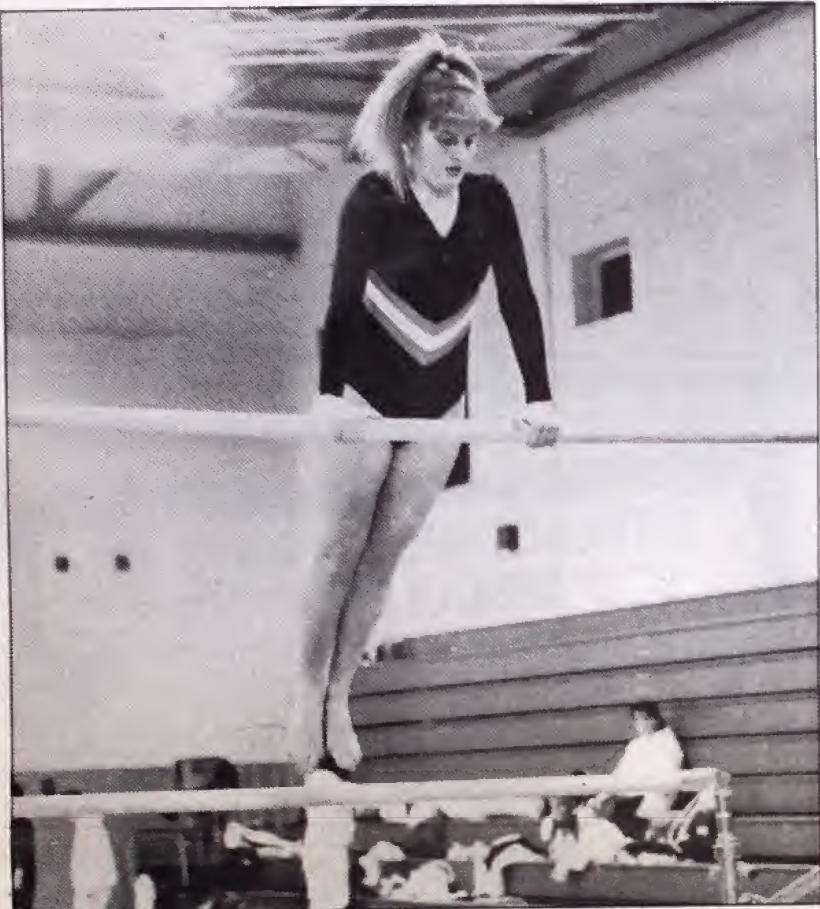

Other Romulus medalists included: Tony Venturini, 103-pounder who finished second; Dennis Corder, 135-pounder, also a runner up; Bruce Boyd, who finished third; Rick Champagne (140) and Ralph Farrell (160) - fourth; and Dave Gehringer (112) who finished fifth.

Nowicki, completing his first year of varsity competition, disposed of Tom Rimmer from Bedford in the finals to earn the gold. He also posted victories over Webb of Monroe -1:35; Shaw of Waite - 4:21; and Haynes of St. Edwards (Cleveland) before winning the championship. His personal record for the season is 25-2.

Kosikowski turned back his three preliminary rivals - Kennedy of St. John's; Walton of Port Huron (Ohio), and Long of Cleveland via decisions.

Venturini found himself wrestling the defending Ohio champ in David Zapadka in the finals. The confrontation ended with Zapad-

Belleville rebuilds gymnastics team

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

With little and no experience to rely on, Belleville is building its gymnastics team for the future.

And laying the foundation is Coach Judy Marr who has returned to the coaching scene after a hiatus of three years.

"I am happy to be back," said Marr whose Tigers are 1-2 in conference competition. "We got our work cut out for us. Many of our gymnasts are first-year performers."

Among Marr's more promising prospects are Wendy Traskos, a junior, and Ann Oles, a freshman. They have captured most of the lime-light thus far this season.

Traskos took a first place in the floor exercises while Oles was third with scores of 8.3 and 7.9 (out of a possible 10), respectively, against Clarenceville. Clarenceville, however, managed to emerge atop of a 115.3 to 105.2 score against their conference rivals last week.

Belleville launched the 1988 campaign on the short end of a 111.15 to 102.2 decision against Westland John Glenn, but managed to bounce back to even up their record and post their first victory of the year over Wayne Memorial, 111.1 to 107.7.

Marr, who replaces Jim Fitch, as head coach believes her team has a lot of potential but is short on experience.

"These kids are improving with each practice with each meet," she said. "There is a remarkable difference from meet-to-meet and I am enthusiastic about our future."

Marr has a cadre of 13 young and dedicated gymnasts to pick her lineup. Among the candidates include two seniors: Kelley Beatty and Bev Thomas; From the junior ranks are Kim Pinson, Sherry Ostrowski, Jackie Howard, Traskos, and Jamie Wilson; Sophomores are Kristal Lyson, Sue Marosi, Melissa Myers and Shannon Sanders; the freshmen are Nicole McKeith and Ann Oles.

When everything seemed to fit, Tigers fall, 63-60

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

The pieces appeared to fit. Coach Michael Garland had glued them together, he believed, a week ago when Belleville blasted the Wyandotte Bruins 69-50 to even up their Wolverine 'A' Conference cage record to 3-3 on the season.

And the next in line was Lincoln Park, which appeared ripe for easy Tiger pickings.

Right? Wrong. The Tigers turned into the proverbial "paper tiger" as Lincoln Park struck for a 63-60 victory over Garland's cagers. "We were outplayed for 32 minutes," moaned Garland. "After the Wyandotte game, I felt these kids had the confidence to get the job done. Obviously I was wrong."

Belleville will return to the drawing board to try to figure out just what went wrong. They have three road games as the second round begins. Last night they took on Fordson, will travel to Trenton on Friday and face out-of-conference rival, Saginaw, Tuesday.

Belleville looked like it was going to swipe the Lincoln Park victory away from the Railsplitters in the closing seconds when Maurice Brantley hit a three-point play with 15 seconds left to pull his teammates within one. When Lincoln Park turned the ball over to Brantley on a steal the next play, the Tigers still had that last shot chance that they worked so well against Westland John Glenn earlier this year. They got the ball with seven seconds on the clock and set up a play that baffled their rivals. Unfortunately, the Tigers found it too easy to believe they had a clear shot - and they missed.

Up 14-12 at the end of the first eight minutes, Belleville fell behind 32-29 at halftime. They rode a 21-17 third period to a 50-49 lead into the fourth period, but just couldn't stop junior guard Harold Skinner

Vikings are fading fast in title race

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

After their third loss, the Inkster Vikings are fading fast in the race for the Suburban Athletic Conference basketball championship.

And they can't say they weren't warned by their coach.

Willow Run rallied for a 64-62 overtime victory over Coach George Thompson Jr. and his Vikings last week and that about does it for the local quintet.

Inkster now trails frontrunner Robichaud by three games in the SAC. Thompson had cautioned his cagers that if they fell behind the leader by three it would take a miracle for them to catch up. Now they are looking for that miracle.

Although it's possible that Robichaud could fall apart in the home stretch, it's not probable. The Vikings shouldn't hold their breath.

Robichaud is 5-0 (league) and (10-0) over-all as the week commences. And the Bulldogs continue to look hungry.

The schedule, however, favours Inkster. Robichaud must play three of four remaining conference games on foreign soil and they could easily be taken hostage. In the meantime, the Vikings have four home games and they could possibly salvage a share of the title.

But even coach Thompson says "it's only a remote possibility."

"We're not throwing in any towels. Not yet, anyway," Thompson said. "But we definitely need help from the others if we are going to move up in the standings. Unfortunately, we didn't do the job when we had the chances."

Thompson was referring to the "golden opportunity" at Willow Run where the Vikings blew a 11-point lead in stomaching their third loss in five SAC starts.

Playing a superb game, James Poole put the Vikings on the right course as he guided them to a 14-11 first period and a 34-27 halftime lead. Before he was through for the evening,

Romulus seeking 1st league win

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

The South Central Conference cage powers continue to beat up on the new kid on the block.

In this case, Romulus, which was officially accepted into the SCC this year.

Coach Dan Henry and his Eagles took it on the chin for the fourth time this season in the conference as the historic first victory remains elusive. The Eagles fell 72-65 to Adrian in a game that was marred by an injury to Romulus' Willie Maull.

Maull struck his head on the floor late in the game and was rushed to Annapolis Hospital and later transferred to Westland Medical Center because Annapolis didn't have any available beds.

On Saturday, Maull's father said his son was recovering from a concussion.

Adrian grabbed a 15-12 first period lead and increased the margin to 37-25 at the midway point. The Eagles came back and ripped off eight unanswered points in the third period but couldn't maintain the pace. They fell behind 56-42 for three quarters.

Romulus had its problems containing senior guard Todd

Powell who drilled in a game and career high 33 points. He was supported by Scott Riley who accounted for 23 points.

Before his departure from the action, Maull had scored a team-high 20 points.

The loss dropped the Eagles to a 0-4 conference and a 2-7 over all record. They snapped their six-game losing streak last Tuesday at the expense of Taylor Truman.

Romulus turned in its best offensive showing of the year in the 68-54 victory, according to Henry.

"For the first time this year we showed signs of playing as one unit. We got the job done offensively with a minimum amount of turnovers and we went to the boards the way we should."

After establishing an 18-13 first period lead, the Eagles remained in front the rest of the way. They led 33-30 and 51-43 at the end of the middle two periods.

Brent Bonam came alive with a game-high 32 points, while Arol Trinity and Hudson each had 10.

Marshall Newsome paced Truman with 17 points; Len

'Different strokes'

After 2 straight losses, Belleville tankers find win

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Belleville swimmers came back with strokes of a different kind as they overpowered Southgate Anderson 65-18 for their third Wolverine 'A' Conference victory in four starts. The Tigers are 5-2 on the year.

After losing back-to-back decisions to Monroe (league) and Plymouth Canton (non-league) the week before, Coach Bill Snider's tankers took their wrath out on Anderson, sweeping all 11 first places.

"We moved some people around and gave everyone an opportunity to compete in this one," said Snider whose club met Dearborn Edsel Ford last night and will have Thursday off. "We know that we must continue to improve down the stretch if we are going to do anything at the conference championships."

Belleville produced a pair of double winners from its ranks. Senior Martin Duda contributed the 200-yard individual medley and the 100-yard breaststroke, covering those distances in 2:15.9 and 1:08.36, respectively. Teammate Pat Reed came through in the 50 yard freestyle and also won the 100-yard freestyle in times of 25.56 and 57.26.

Snider went with a new lineup for the medley relay in Charlie Howard, Mike Ackron, Joe Bongiorno and Eric Snider who turned in the winning time of 1:53.72.

Mike Bird topped the field in the 200-yard freestyle as he checked in with a 1:58.75.

Trevor Yeary returned from a second place finish in the 200 IM (2:24.32) to claim a victory in the backstroke. His winning time was 1:05.41.

In diving, the Tigers had a winner in Tim Murphy who amassed 208.35 points.

Belleville came back with victories from Eric Lawson and Scott Overholt in the 100-yard butterfly and the 500-yard freestyle. Lawson's winning time in the butterfly was a 1:01.70; Overholt touched in at 5:27.62 in the 500.

Southgate had a chance to steal the final relay when Belleville's first entry was disqualified. However, the Tigers backup lineup of Kevin Kilbough, Dory Duff, Ed Trudo and Duane Townsend took over and won in a 4:04.24 effort.

Despite the break in the schedule, Snider said he won't give his team a day off tomorrow.

Belleville claims hard-fought victory

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Belleville wrestlers made it two out of three over key Wolverine 'A' Conference opponents as Coach Gerald Malacek's Tigers stopped always troublesome Wayne Memorial, 38-27.

"It was a hard-fought victory," noted Malacek whose club is now 4-1 in the conference and 5-2-1 over all on the season. "We got a victory from a newcomer that turned the tide in our favor."

who had 25 points for the evening. Brantley's 27 points topped the field. Teammate Al Tilman added 18.

Wyandotte was no match for the Tigers who jumped from a 10-6 first period to a 35-16 advantage at half time and was never seriously challenged after the intermission.

Brantley again paced all scorers. He had 19; Tilman accounted for 12 and Darrick Coleman chipped in 11.

It won't be easy for the Eagles this week, either. They hosted Temperance Bedford last night and remain home Friday to greet Ann Arbor Pioneer.

The Tigers will take a 2-3 won-lost Wolverine "A" Conference record and a 5-6 overall mark into this week's action.

Wayne is running away with the title race.

Corder reached the finals of the 135-pound class and lost a close decision to Jim Pinkney of Marion-Franklin, a team out of Columbus, Ohio. Pinkney was runner up in the state last year at the Ohio championships.

Setting standards

Clergyman 'builds homes' before ceremony

By THOMAS M. VARCIE
ANP Staff Writer

What a man and a woman bring to their marriage is decided mostly by their personal standards. This is why marriage planning is important before the wedding, according to local clergymen.

The Rev. Ralph Fischer, pastor at St. Matthew Lutheran Church, Westland, offers guidance to individuals with faith who plan to start a marriage. Fischer said "the couple must have faith in God before they get married."

In his pre-marriage counseling sessions, Fischer takes the couple through the pitfalls of marriage, explains the meaning of the engagement ring and engagement and helps the two plan to succeed and have a happy marriage.

There's the 50-50 marriage - or the business deal. The type of marriage where anything goes as long as it does not hurt anyone. And, finally, the 100-100 marriage where each gives their all freely.

Fischer advises people getting married to visit a pastor to get a thorough understanding of marriage and the building of a home. He said the couple should seek a standard for their marriage, a standard understood by both.

"There are five types of marriages," Fischer said. "There's the 50-50 marriage - or the business deal. There is the husband the boss, the wife the slave marriage and the wife the boss, the husband the slave marriage. The type of marriage where anything goes as long as it does not hurt anyone.

And, finally, the 100-100 marriage, where each gives their all freely."

He also explained the 12 "bosses" or standards of marriage, which include the model from the man's parents, the model from the woman's parents, the view of the man, the view of the woman, man's view from his religious beliefs, woman's view from her religious beliefs, man's faith teachings on divorce, woman's faith teachings on divorce, book standards, anything goes, man's individual view and a woman's individual view.

Whatever standard is chosen, the new couple must share the same one, he said. ■

Photographers: Shop around, see examples

By THOMAS M. VARCIE
ANP Staff Writer

Planning the photography for a wedding isn't as easy as saying "cheese." David Nelson, owner of Nelson Photography, Romulus, stakes his career on it.

Nelson — a graduate of the Brooks Institute, in Santa Barbara, Calif., where he obtained a bachelor's degree in scientific photography — said many couples aren't aware of the many pitfalls of wedding photography — until it is too late. Nelson's advice is simple: be aware of the gimmicks.

"Don't let the photographers pull wool over your eyes," said Nelson, a 10-year veteran of photography. "Check out a photographer thoroughly, and really see what you are getting. It's incredible."

"Sometimes people get an inexperienced amateur photographer with a 35 mm camera to shoot for their wedding and pay top-dollar for it. It is really horrible."

Before choosing a photographer, couples planning a wedding should evaluate the photographer's personal relations and communication skills, his credibility, reputation and qualifications, Nelson said.

In addition, a quick check of the photographer's camera equipment and lighting might "sell" the couple on his skills — or encourage the couple to continue shopping around. Reviewing the photographer's most recent book of wedding portraits can also be useful.

And price?

"You can get the best quality for the best price," Nelson explained.

The most popular wedding package at Nelson Photography will cost the new bride and groom $650. The package includes photographs at the bride's house, church and reception. An alternate setting — a park or outdoor scene — can also be included in the package, he said.

For the couple who want everything, Nelson also offers a slide show presentation at the reception. The show highlights key points in the bride's and groom's lives in a "This is Your Life" fashion. The service sells for $500.

One last word of advice in choosing photographers, Nelson said, is advance planning. In order to find the best quality at the best price, Nelson recommends looking for the photo expert at least one year before the wedding date. ■

Floral beauty

A good florist wants to make the bride and groom sparkle

By THOMAS M. VARCIE
ANP Staff Writer

Flowers aren't simply ritualistic parts of the American wedding. They are meant to enhance the beauty of the event, using shape, color and floral elegance, according to Judy Decker, owner of Decker's Flowers, Westland.

Planning the wedding flowers should begin about six months before the wedding, Decker said. In the planning, the wedding couple must decide what type of flowers they prefer and how much they wish to spend. A floral designer can make those decisions less difficult, she said.

"It's really hard to make estimates of orders over the phone. People should really go and talk to a florist," Decker said. "Try to make an appointment because sometimes it takes an hour or two to discuss flower orders."

A good florist, Decker said, will determine which flowers fit the couple, which are in season and which are the best buy for the money spent. Although roses are always the popular wedding choice, the experienced florist can use stephanotis, daisies, baby's breath, statice, carnations or orchids to make the bride and wedding party sparkle, Decker explained.

All for a reasonable price.

Decker said average costs of flowers at weddings with eight attendants range from $400 to $500.

Ordering the flowers usually requires a deposit to hold an order. Full payments are usually required a week before the wedding.

Bob Pinter, owner of Pinter Harry Greenhouse, Belleville, agreed with the $400-to-$500 price range but said he has filled last-minute orders as late as two days before the wedding.

"We can still handle it if they (the couples) come in two days before the wedding. They're not going to get anything exotic, but they will still get roses or carnations - something on that line," said Pinter. "Most of the people that do come in two days before the wedding have scheduled a last-minute wedding." ■

The debate continues: A band or disc jockey?

By THOMAS M. VARCIE
ANP Staff Writer

A band or a disc jockey at the wedding? The decision has been the cause of several wedding family rifts.

Even area musicians are undecided about the benefits of each.

Sue Deaver, of Dazz Dance, Ypsilanti, said DJs have more music available to play at the reception. But bands are more personal and influential. She said people generally call both "live entertainment."

"Both of them guide the audience," said Deaver. "But, with a band, sometimes people complain because they don't hear the music the same as they've grown to learn it. DJs generally have a wider variety of music. They can go to any song immediately."

Al Micallef Jr., lead singer for local band Fugitive, said a band "generates energy" at the reception.

"A live act is generally more energetic. People see this, and they generate energy. It goes back and forth," said Micallef. "Some bands are bad. But it depends on the experience they have.

"Bands generally really get into their shows. But I have seen some DJs get into their shows, too," he continued. "Some DJs are very expensive. Some are even more than a band."

The cost of hiring a band for the wedding starts at $300, Micallef said. In comparison, a disc jockey will cost the wedding couple from $100 to $400.

Both a band and a DJ usually require a one-year advance booking, he said.

Gary Hajdyla, founder and president of D and G Recordings, Dearborn Heights, said DJs can supply the music people are expecting to hear, music most wedding bands do not have the experience to play.

"A DJ can cater to almost everyone, and they play the songs people want to hear," said Hajdyla. "DJs can start the crowd with different types of dances that get the crowd going crazy."

However, Hajdyla said, couples should use caution when searching for a DJ or a band. Not all have quality sound equipment, which he said "is one of the biggest drawbacks for DJs today." ■

Booking the hall done right after the church

By THOMAS M. VARCIE
ANP Staff Writer

Before a couple chooses a reception hall for their wedding, a few planning steps must be completed, according to Joanne LaForest, banquet manager of the Mayflower Hotel, Plymouth.

LaForest said the church should be chosen first.

"(But) before the hall is chosen, it must be determined how many people will be invited, what kind of atmosphere is wanted, if a sit-down or buffet-style is wanted and, finally, if the price is adequate."

And even after those decisions are finalized, several others will follow, she continued.

LaForest said receptions at the Mayflower cost $700 plus dinner, which ranges from $14 to $18 per person. The $700 price includes the ballroom, a doorman, a coatroom attendant and a room for the bride and groom.

She said the hall should be booked at least one year before the wedding.

"I am booking weddings for 1989

now. I have no Saturdays available for 1988," she said.

Marisa Shrader, reservations manager of Roma's of Garden City, said she believes the average due bill at a hall ranges from $1,695 to $2,100.

"There are different types of menus, and some months are always discounted," said Shrader.

Shrader advises couples looking for a reception hall to look into the halls thoroughly and "really know what you're getting."

"Really look around, and ask questions," said Shrader. "Make an appointment, and go look at different halls. Don't shop by phone."

Like most reception halls, Roma's of Garden City and the Mayflower Hotel require a deposit to be paid when the hall is booked. The balance is due the day of the wedding. ■

Finances, needs determine new 'home'

By THOMAS M. VARCIE
ANP Staff Writer

Couples planning to wed soon may face a common dilemma — renting an apartment or buying a house.

Dennis Wallot, president of Money Concepts at the Financial Planning Center, Westland, said the solution to the dilemma depends on the income of the couple.

"It is probably more economical to rent an apartment. On the other hand, when a house is purchased, you have write-offs (the property tax and the interest on the mortgage are tax deductible)," Wallot said.

Ted Martin, broker at Earl Keim Realty in Westland, said it could be advantageous to purchase a house, allowing home equity to be built.

"The interest rates seem to be at a low point," Martin explained.

Mary Hardin, apartment manager at the Woodcrest Villa apartments, Westland, said it would be better for newlywed couples to rent an apartment because a house "is much more expensive," and an apartment has little maintenance to be done by the renter.

Wallot said there is a definite advantage to buying a house.

"It's your house. You can do

Real estate experts say buying a home can be affordable if the newlywed couple make at least $40,000 per year. ANP photo by Ann Grimes/staff photographer what you want with it. There's more space," said Wallot.

But, he continued, there are a few guidelines to use in determining whether to buy a house or rent an apartment.

"In determining whether to buy or rent, look at your tax bracket, need for space, lifestyle, savings in the bank, familiarity with the area, likelihood of being transferred, investment probability and current price," said Wallot.

Martin added that a home is probably most affordable if both the new bride and groom are working.

"If both are working and the combined income is $28,000 to $30,000, then they should definitely buy," said Martin. "They should build in equity."

But, he said, in a typical market, home prices increase faster than couples can save. The end result is that couples' savings are consumed by not buying immediately.

To avoid these complexities, Hardin again suggested an apartment.

"It's virtually maintenance-free. You don't have to worry about wear and tear or downpayments," she said. "Financially, most newlywed couples are unable to go into a house immediately."

Financially speaking, average monthly apartment rent ranges from $385 to $500 for a one-bedroom unit. Houses in the area, according to Martin, feature monthly payments of $600 to $700 per month. But, he said, a downpayment is also required with the purchase of a house.

"Ideally, a couple should put down 10 percent. The closing cost is generally between $2,500 and $3,000 (which includes one year of taxes)," said Martin.

Martin added that a couple could also put down as low as 5 percent on a home.

Whatever their primary thoughts on renting or buying, newlyweds should talk to a real estate agent, according to Martin.

"Talk with a Realtor and discuss a price range if you're interested. We will work with them and figure out a typical monthly mortgage. We'll help them to determine where to shop."

If couples are interested in renting an apartment, Hardin suggested they shop around and use published apartment guides for assistance. ■

Advance planning is important in apparel

By THOMAS M. VARCIE
ANP Staff Writer

Wedding time usually means dress-up time for the bride, groom, attendants and family. And dress-up usually can be coupled with a concern for style.

Doug Mueller, district manager at President Tuxedo in Westland Center, said his store carries outfits by Pierre Cardin, Bill Blass, Miami Vice, After Six and many others. Tuxedos average $65 to $70 and should be fitted by the wedding party about three weeks prior to the wedding, Mueller said. The outfits are generally available to pick up about two days before the wedding.

Mueller said the store workers are able to do minor alterations immediately. Payments are due when the tuxedos are picked up. A deposit is usually paid when the order is placed.

Thus, renting a tuxedo may sound simple. But what about the bride's dress?

Lillian Kellman, of Miracle Wedding Villiage and Gift Shop, Dearborn Heights, said wedding gowns should be ordered or purchased four to eight months before the wedding. This allows for surprise problems, including alterations, security of having the dress and finances.

"The bride should always leave enough time," said Kellman. "She has so much going on in her mind, and she shouldn't constantly have to worry about the dress."

Kellman said her store carries several styles of dresses, with all sizes and selections ranging from $280 and higher. Dress sizes, she said, available at Miracle Village range from size 6 to 44. She added that all of the current dress fashions are discounted by 20 percent.

Advice is one word Kellman does not want future brides to forget.

"Don't be afraid to try on dresses. We will consult the lady. We will stay within her price range. No one is pressured here. We'll try to give them all the information." ■

Most brides today opt for the formal, white or ivory wedding gowns, which cost her an average of $519 ($644 if the veil/headpiece are considered). The groom, on the other hand, still typically rents his wedding attire, paying $61 for the tuxedo. Black currently is the most popular tuxedo color chosen.

The honeymoon spots 'are hot'

Hawaii. The Caribbean. Acapulco and Cancun.

All of these are among the most popular honeymoon spots, according to officials at AAA of Livonia and Wayne Metro Travel Service.

Bridget Kelly, an agent at Wayne Metro Travel Service, Wayne, said more and more couples want to head to the tropics and warm weather for honeymoons.

She said average honeymoons are about $2,500 and last seven days.

Mary Ellen Rogacki, supervisor at AAA of Livonia, said couples should consult with a travel agency about six months before the wedding to make plans. She also suggested a well-known travel agency and not settling for one price.

"Check two agencies - always. There may be better deals somewhere else," Rogacki explained. ■

Limousine accents that very special occasion

By THOMAS M. VARCIE
ANP Staff Writer

The newlywed couple were clad in white, cruising gently down the road to the reception hall in their rented, chauffeur-driven, white limousine.

Starry eyes from passersby could be detected, and expressions of awe filled their faces as they looked in envy at the newlyweds.

With a bang, the groom forcefully popped open a bottle of already chilled champagne. And, without a bump, he gently poured the liquid into his newlywed wife's tulip glass. She nervously giggled with her husband and said, "I'm glad we rented this limousine, darling."

Perhaps not a candidate for the best-seller list, but this story can suitably describe the experience newlyweds explain, after renting a limousine.

Oliver Lindsay, general manager of University Limousine, Canton, said the scene is common for a wedding. Renting a limousine for a wedding is becoming increasingly popular, inexpensive and more contemporary, he continued.

Lindsay said the average wedding package is $45 per hour, with a minimum of three hours. The package includes picking up the bride and groom separately, transporting them to the church, staying in front of the church to impress the guests and a few extras - including a bottle of chilled champagne for the bride and groom, a "just married" sign and a red carpet rolled out for the couple.

If planning to rent a limousine, Lindsay recommends that it be ordered at least three weeks before the wedding to ensure a good selection.

He added that the packages are standard, but a discount is offered if the couple wants to keep the vehicle for the day. Such an extra is an ideal touch for the newlyweds, he said.

"It is trouble-free transportation for them. They don't have to worry about traffic or even parking the car." ■

Saying 'thanks'

Although it is the bride and groom who receive most of the gifts, the bridal couple must not forget gifts for the attendants. Most popular gifts for the bride's attendants are strands of pearls (which cost between $16 and $22) and engraved lockets ($12.95), according to Pete Tavormina, owner of Misty's Cards and Gifts, Garden City. The pearls are ideal, Tavormina said, because bridal attendants' gowns are generally low-cut and need a necklace. The pearls will ensure that all girls wear the same jewels. For the guys, Tavormina recommended glass beer tankards, available at Misty's for $15.95 – which includes engraving – or pewter mugs. For the bride and groom, gift-givers may wish to consider a foil art plaque (above), which sells for $15.95, etched toasting glasses ($20.95 set) or other accessories. Misty's also features a full line of wedding stationery and supplies and an up to 20-percent discount. Owned by Pete and Janis Tavormina, Misty's is located at 6209 Middlebelt Road, Garden City. Rings are still modern, but the values are 'old'

By THOMAS M. VARCIE
ANP Staff Writer

In folklore, the engagement ring was a pledge to be married and the formal sealing of the marriage "deal." In some respects, those beliefs are still true today, according to one local jeweler.

Robert Girard is the jewelry department manager of Leo's Jewelry and Gifts, Wayne. He said people have become more contemporary in their engagement and wedding ring preferences, but their values behind the rings are still very traditional.

"Now the bridal sets are more popular. It's not uncommon to find people having rubies, emeralds or sapphires in their bridal sets," said Girard. "Plain gold bands are not as popular any more. Diamonds, yellow gold and tri-gold rings are becoming very popular now."

Girard suggested a consultation with a jeweler about the rings to be purchased. He said misleading material in some newspaper and television advertisements and brochures discourage potential buyers – especially when buying a diamond.

It's not uncommon to find people having rubies, emeralds or sapphires in their bridal sets.

"I suggest consultation very much. People should know about the four Cs – color, cut, clarity and carat weight. They should be briefed in that and know what they're buying."

Rings for the bride generally range from $750 to $12,500, while the men's ring averages about $250. However, Girard said, bridal sets for the couple start at $300.

And how much is too much to spend on that diamond "rock" for the new bride?

DeBeers Consolidate, a diamond mining company, instructs the new groom to spend the salary from two months of work on the engagement ring and wedding band. ■

BRIEFLY WEDDINGS

Brides still prefer traditional ceremony

Approximately 95 percent of all brides surveyed by BRIDE'S magazine said they have formal weddings. Comparison of those results with previous surveys show that formal weddings continue to be the overwhelming choice of the readers.

Almost all of the magazine readers are married in a religious ceremony, the vast majority of which (91 percent) are performed in a church, synagogue or chapel.

More ceremonies take place in the afternoon (60 percent) than in the evening (26 percent) or morning (14 percent).

In addition to a maid of honor and a best man, most BRIDE'S readers have an average of four bridesmaids and four ushers. About 57 percent have children in the wedding party.

Bride and groom: A black and white pair

Traditional white or ivory gowns of a somewhat ornate nature and formal tuxedos remain most often picked choice of bride and grooms today, according to a study by BRIDE'S magazine.

Almost half (45 percent) of the brides choose a floor-length gown with a chapel train, 29 percent choose a floor-length with a cathedral train, and 11 percent choose floor length with a sweeptrain.

High-illusion necklines, chosen by 39 percent of readers, are more than twice as popular as other necklines. Average amount spent for the bridal gown is $519, $125 for the headpiece/veil - $644 total.

The groom is also very traditional in his attire, with tuxedos remaining popular. However, color choice have changed in the last three years.

Currently, black (40 percent), followed by grey (33 percent) and white (17 percent) are the most popular tuxedo colors. A 1984 study showed the favorites to be grey (36 percent) and black (26 percent.)

Black-tie tuxedos (33 percent), followed by white tie and tails (23 percent) continue to be the preferred styles of the tuxes.

Most men rent their formal wear, the study showed. The few who do purchase their tux spend an average of $312.

Attendants' gifts are made of silver, gold

The most popular gift for the maid of honor and bridesmaids is a necklace, chosen by 38 percent of the brides surveyed by BRIDE'S magazine.

Next are earrings (26 percent) and bracelets (14 percent). Mugs
